LEGACY SERIES

Lauren Ambrite, the National Association of Tourist Attraction Survivors editor of A Green Glow on the Horizon, is a serial collector who satisfies her greedy soul by collecting the stories of fellow Tourist Attraction Trauma survivors starved of significance in a world that consigns to the shadows individuals who “feel too deeply.” Lauren knows that, unlike tourists on summer road trips laughing off and leaving behind mermaid shows, jackalopes, and wax statues of the biblical Job, tourist attraction survivors cannot simply walk away. Instead, they wander troubled through these fabulist tales. Standing behind this earnest but sometimes scary editor is author Dawn Burns, a writer who dares to expose the complicated, often contradictory yearnings and compulsions, griefs and grievous missteps of fellow human beings.

“Delicious humor . . . a masterful perception of the strangeness of the human condition.”

—Cait West, author of Rift

“Testaments to joy and love, testimonies of insecurity and fear.”

—RS Deeren, author of Enough to Lose

“Wildly inventive, serenely wise, and delightfully zany.”

—Valerie Sayers, author of The Age of Infidelity

“Turns out there is a there there, and you can get there from here.”

—Michael Martone, author of Plain Air: Dispatches from Winesburg, Indiana
